

Yoon Gyoo Jang

(Unsangdong Architects Principal)

Jang Yoon Gyoo is the Principal of Unsangdong Architects Cooperation. Unsangdong Architects is the experimental group organized to realize conceptual architecture with variable possibilities of cultural contents. The main research and project of Unsangdong is based on the diversity of architecture. In the nearest 2007, Unsangdong received AR Awards from Architectural Review which is world-famous architectural award. Unsangdong received Vanguard Award from Architectural Record that is awarded to innovative architect in the world in 2006. Jang Yoon Gyoo was selected one of 40 noteworthy international architects by the Japanese journal <10+1> in 2001. And last October he gave a lecture at UC Berkeley that the first lecture as the Korean architects. Also In 2008 he gave a lecture for RIBA. Jang Yoon Gyoo introduced the idea of 'space coordinator' and showed experimental works at Ssamzie Project, the Seoul Museum of Art CheongGyeChun Exhibition and the Preliminary Alert Exhibition. He is presently a professor at the school of architecture, KookMin university, and a representative of gallery JUNG MISO as an establishment to extend cultural codes passing over architecture. He is also leading a new architectural experiment by changing the atelier Jang Yoon Gyoo for theory & experimentation to the UNSANGDONG architects cooperation.

(www.usdSPACE.com)

Winner THE PLAN AWARD/ Public space, 2018

Grand prize award, Architecture Award of Seoul Metropolitan City, 2010

Grand prize award of Korean Space & Culture Institute, 2009

Good Designer prize of Korean Good Design Award, 2009

Award of Korean Architects Institute, 2010, 2007

Architecture Award of Seoul Metropolitan City, 2010, 2007

Award of Korean Architecture & Culture, 2007

Architectural Review commended award, 2007

Architecture Record Vanguard Award, 2006

Shinken-chiku Takiron International Competition, Honorable Mention, 1994